With regards to those brethren [TC: synonymous with “mujahidin” in the context of this document] who are entering and departing Iraq, they are as follows: 89 martyrdom seekers and combatants coming into Iraq, although the ones slated for carrying out martyrdom operations have not yet been separated from the combatants. Among them was a family of six children and one woman.

There are 20 brethren departing Iraq.

As for the incoming explosives, there are 10 rolls of quartz [TC: possibly cortex detonation cord] being brought to Ar Ramadi and 19 timers that have been transported to Abu-Qassurah [TC: alternate spelling: Abu-Qasurah], two cameras—one being brought to Mosul and the other to Abu-Qassurah, and three laptop computers—one to Tall’Afar, the second to Mosul, and the third to Abu-Qassurah. This is the report from border sector 1 as of Abu-‘Abdallah al-Ansari’s assumption of command on 15 March 2006 till Abu-Muthanna’s taking over on 16 September 2006.
