Introduction:

The disloyal Badr Corps is the product of the security services and the religious establishment in the evil Iran which wanted from this military force to be a disloyal tool during the glorious battle of Qadisiyat Saddam in order to stab Iraq, harm it and use it as a mean of controversy for the Iranian Organization of Mujahidi Khalq. After ending the military chapter of the immortal battle of Umm al Ma'arik, the Corps wanted to harm Iraq by resorting to all the hateful and evil enemies and many countries renewed their support and assistance to it, such as Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United States since it supplied them with a larger capability for hurting our country in accordance with their plan hostile to Iraq. Everybody participated to help Iran. The participation of the disloyal Corps in the events of the Chapter of Treason and Betrayal and in the joint planning is just one of the phases of the agreement between all the parties to conspire against Iraq and what it stands for; being unique in its military organization and power compared to what is called the disloyal opposition and having a direct influence because of its available military capabilities and its geographic location along the borders with Iran.

Its beginning and formation

In 1985, the creation of the Corps began, composed of fugitives to Iran who belonged to the disloyal Al-Dawa party. The latter formed a regiment it called (Martyr Al-Sadr) Regiment. Al-Dawa party was the unique political gathering on the Iranian arena which possessed the capabilities to create an armed regiment. At the time the headquarters of the regiment was in Al-Ahwaz, in the camps of Ghayour Asla. Later on, another regiment was formed by (Al-Tawabeen [i.e. the repentants]) who were renegade prisoners to whom was given the name of Imam Al-Khomeini Regiment, led by the fugitive Abu Ali Al-Basri (it attacked our units in the battle of Qurrah Dagh [Margin reads: To confirm it with a date], in the Northern region and the traitors incurred huge losses at that time. He and whoever was left with him fled to the evil Iran). After him, the leadership of the regiment was assumed by the Iranian Zu Al-Qadr... who is presently the Commander of the Iranian Naval Force [Margin reads: To make sure of it]. Later on, both regiments merged and to them were added whoever fled to Iran, the renegade prisoners and the exiled. The new formation was given the name of (Badr Brigade 9)... It was given this name after the name of the great battle of Badr which was for us the first battle of the Muslims against the polytheists in which they won although they were a minority. It was in the month of Ramadan which is the (9th) of the lunar months. It was given this name for this reason. After the creation of this brigade, it was attached to the Ministry of the Revolutionary Guard (Al-Sibat) and it was led by the Iranian officer named Abdel Rahman Naqdi (also known as Diya' Shams, he is presently the Director of the Police Intelligence). [Margin reads: To make sure of it] Later on, the Iranian Ismail Daka'iki assumed the command of the brigade. He was killed by our courageous army during the glorious battle of Qadisiyat Saddam. The brigade remained under Iranian command until the end of Qadisiyat.

Two months prior to the agreement of Iran on the Security Council Resolution No. 598 and the discontinuation [Margin reads: discontinuation, Arabic had a typing error] of the military operations in 1988 A.D., the fugitive criminal Mohamed Baqer Al-Hakeem (President of what is called the Supreme Council of the Islamic Revolution in Iraq) announced that the forces of his suspected council have become a brigade and not a division. He gave it the name of "Badr Brigade 9." It included (12,000) twelve thousand elements. When the war was over, a not so small number of its elements stopped working for it. Following the [Margin reads: begin a new line] reactions to the Day of the Call and the liberation of Kuwait on August 2, 1990, Iran represented by its intelligence services began paying attention to this Corps to recruit it in the chapter of subsequent aggressions carried out by the evil Iran within the US plan to attack Iraq. Indeed, this disloyal Corps and whoever was supervising it had an effective role in the subversive activities in most of the governorates of our country since the beginning of March 1991.

[Margin reads: After the events,] Iran entrusted the declared command of the Corps to the fugitive traitor Adnan Ibrahim Muhsin Al-Najjar, also known as Abu Ali Al-Basari, to give the impression that it was not interfering in the Iraqi opposition's affairs and to accentuate its international role. It was also an attempt on its behalf to ascertain its non-interference in the internal affairs of Iraq.

Iranian plan to embrace the Corps (Indirect) Iranian Administration of the disloyal Corps

- 1- To attach the Corps to the highest authority in the military decision making which is the Iranian Revolutionary Guard and to directly supervise it, supply it with camps on the Iraqi borders, divide its operations into axes according to Karar Kah map in order to coordinate and avoid breaking off the relations. Since its formation in the year 2000, the Iranian intelligence introduced selected groups of the Corps elements to sessions specialized in blasting, surveillance, collection of information, opening of locks, forging of documents and targeting of prominent figures. The training operations are still going on and the trainees were distributed on the axes.
- 2- The Corps relies directly on Iran to get training, weapons, material support and it participates with the Iranian army in joint sessions on the arts of combat. It also participated with the Iranian army in the maneuvers which occurred in 2001 in the sector of Sarbil Zihab close to the Iraq borders.
- 3- To rely on some officers of the Corps to create the academic schools specialized in the military sciences to take advantage of the experience of the Iraqi army in the planning and recruitment. A staff school was created belonging to the disloyal Corps located in Teheran under the supervision of the renegade Ali Fekri.

Conflicts inside the Corps:

- 1- Conflict between the Old and the (Tawabeen).
As mentioned at the beginning of the study, the first cell of the disloyal Corps was constituted of elements belonging to the disloyal Al-Dawa party and it was called (Martyr Al-Sadr) Regiment and the Tawabeen were called the (Old) (14).

The second regiment was called the Khomeiny Regiment. After merging them, the command was given to the Old for several reasons:

- A- They claimed to have the priority in Islam on the Tawabeen.
- B- They were considered a partisan organization which carried out the goals of (Al-Dawa) party.
- C- Because the Tawabeen made a mistake which was to fight of the Muslims of Iran.

Due to the difference in the allegiance of both categories; the Old were loyal to the Guard and in secret they were loyal to Al-Dawa Party and the Tawabeen were loyal to the Council and the Command of Al-Hakeem, many conflicts arose between them. The worst was the revolution of the Tawabeen in which they attacked the command of the Corps and occupied it. Abu Ali Al-Basari fled in his car. The following day, the Guard interfered and the situation was settled to the advantage of the Old. Later on, a large group of Tawabeen was dismissed from the Corps. The Old still believe that the Tawabeen are not competent to command and their repentance is not accepted. As to the Tawabeen, they accuse the Old of being against the rule and of taking advantage of the animosity the Old have towards Mohamed Baqer Al-Hakeem who was appointed by an order coming from Khomeiny. He is the Vice-President of (Saheb Al-Zaman) and disobeying him is considered a disobedience to the order of the (custodian of Muslims).

- 2- Conflict between the (Insurgents) on one hand and the (Old and Tawabeen) on the other hand.

At the end of the glorious battle of Qadisiyat Saddam, the Iranian regime tried to coordinate with the Syrian regime in power at the time by transferring the activity of what was called the opposition, including the Corps, to Syria. Indeed, the agent Al-Hakeem went with a group of renegade officers to explore one of the camps to move in. The events of 1991 A.D., the acceleration of events and the desire of Iran to take advantage of them prevented that. The opposition inside Iran remained and here begins the struggle between the two abovementioned groups. The demagogues claimed that they were the ones who restored the opposition after it was subjected to disappear and others claim that they were the ones who created it. The other group is the stronger for being supported by the Guard. Besides, the majority of the demagogues support Al-Khawa'i and in return the Tawabeen and Al-Dawa don't support him and keep away from him in their statements. That's what upset them and led to the separation of authority which developed sometimes into a clash.

- 3- Conflict among the command of the Corps
- There are axes in the command of the Corps. The first one is Abu Ali Al-Basari, a civilian, (Al-Dawa Party), supported by the Guard in the command of the Corps. The second one is under the command of the renegade Abu Lika' Al-Safi (Margin reads: We explain his military formation). He is a supporter of Al-Hakeem command. He adopted the idea that the Corps command be for the officers and the military commander because the Corps is an army and it should be commanded by militaries. He is supported by the officers and the Tawabeen. As a result of that, the Southern axis has been separated from the headquarters of the Corps and there has been an attempt to create a Corps under the command of Abu Lika' in the South. The Guard interfered immediately after and the conflict was settled in 1993 A.D. by making Abu Ali Al-Basari commander of the Corps and Abu Lika' his assistant and his role was curtailed. After Al-Hakeem interfered, he was appointed as (General Commander) of the Iraqi Armed Forces whether in the Corps or outside it which means the forces working with Karar Kah.

  - Third: Official in charge of the Corps military unit for a short period of time.
  - Fourth: Commander of one of the Corps' brigades.
- I- In 1986 A.D., the said person was replaced in the position of official in charge of the military unit by an individual called Abu Ali Al-Mawla (a resident of Mosul and a Shiite; a turbaned religious man) under the instructions of the criminal Al-Hakeem which deepened the disagreements he had with the turbaned religious men connected with Al-Hakeem to the point of an armed fight in which the Guards interfered. He was imprisoned for six months. His disagreements with the Corps' officials continued until recently. The information indicated that he has a large support from the Corps' officers.
- J- The said person is presently in charge of the Corps Training Staff Panel in addition to the fact that Al-Hakeem relied on him and made him his military consultant. He accompanied him to the Gulf countries and Syria.

  - First: Committee member
  - Second: Platoon Commander in Bin A'akil Regiment / Hamza Brigade and Company Commander in the same brigade.
  - Third: He entered the school's staff session of the late Iranian Ismail Daka'iki, founder of the disloyal Badr Corps.
  - Fourth: Official in charge of the Hamza Division's movements.
  - Fifth: He occupies the position of Commander of Ansar Al-Hussein Division belonging to the disloyal Corps.
- D- His father was an employee at the Presidency Office and retired on pension. He was approached according to a plan to take advantage of him with regard to his son and to specify the future practical course to pursue with him. The matter is still followed-up.

Factors of weakness reported to us after conducting a follow-up

- 1- The Corps is composed of three competing ideological trends consisting first of the Islamic Labor Organization. It plays a minor role which is almost inexistent. The second trend is the so-called Hizballah which gets its power from Al-Hakeem and presently considered the most important faction inside the Corps. Then, there is the disloyal Al-Dawa party which gets its power from the Guard. Because of its supportive attitude towards the Guard's directions, it took hold of the important positions inside the Corps. The disloyal Al-Dawa party considers itself entitled to the command and considers the take over by Al-Hakeem of the command of the Supreme Council of the Islamic Revolution and therefore, the Command of the Corps, a fraud since they were the ones who brought him from Syria.
- 2- There is a continuous rivalry between the supporters of Al-Sadr and Al-Khaw'i on one hand and most of them are fugitives after the Chapter of Treason and Betrayal and the supporters of Al-Hakeem on the other hand. This rivalry reached the degree of clashes with machine guns between the supporters of both trends, since the followers of Al-Hakeem pledge allegiance to Al-Faqih (Ali Khamansi). As to the followers of Al-Sadr, they ask for an Iraqi rule and consider Al-Sadr more entitled to the command because he is more knowledgeable and gives better advisory opinions during Friday prayer.
- 3- The presence of Ja'afar Al-Sadr on the Iranian political arena made him a competitor to Al-Hakeem known for his connections with the Iranian intelligence. He claimed to be more entitled to the command by the fact that his father was late Al-Sadr who was executed by the Iraqi government. But the Iranian intelligence finds in him a danger to its politics for not supporting the reign of Al-Faqih. This matter had an impact on the Corps and he finally decided to go to Syria and to reside there.

- But the Iranian intelligence prevented him from doing so. He presently asks that the position for the command of the Council be filled by election and opened to all those present in Iran.
- 4- All the renegade prisoners try to leave Iran. Some of them wanted to work with the Corps in order to return home. We learned that in 2000 A.D. the Red Cross represented by its member for international relief (Emma Nichols – Member of the British House of Commons) visited the renegade prisoners and distributed survey forms to know their opinions on whether they want to return to Iraq or stay in Iran or travel to a third country. All of them wanted to leave Iran with the exception of the disloyal commands.
  - 5-+ All the fugitives during the battles of Al-Qadisiyat and Umm al Ma'arik were between the ages of 18 and 20 years old. Now, they are married to Iranians and they are facing three problems which are the military service, working with the enemy and their Iranian wives.
  - 6-+ /Margin reads: Move it under Strength/ Most of the renegade officers have been presently granted positions inside the Corps and they have properties, real estates and families. They basically involved themselves in material interests and considered their work with the Corps as secondary for them.
  - 7- They are poorly convinced of the nature of their work and some of the renegade prisoners fled from Iran in the direction of a number of foreign countries, including Australia because they felt frustrated, they discovered the falsity of their commanders' claims and their salaries were low compared to the high cost of living in Iran.

- 8- Increase of mental illnesses. The majority of the Corps' agents are elderly, have families in Iraq and think to go back there. Iran buys their services and facilitates their travel outside Iran.
- 9- To limit the place of residence of the Corps' elements and to forbid them from moving without permission. Besides, Iran doesn't allow the children of those renegades and agents to attend the Iranian schools without special permissions because most of the agents and renegades are of a limited educational background and teaching their children will create a class of educated people which in the future will be a problem for them and will make the work of the Iraqi intelligence easy.

Reported elements of strength:

- 1- Military support from the Command of the Iranian Revolutionary Guard.
- 2- Most of the Corps' elements are fugitive soldiers and renegade prisoners. They are well trained on weapons. They are exiled and followed by Al-Dawa party. They are elements who hate the command in addition to the fact that they fled during the Chapter of Treason and Betrayal.
- 3- Weakness of the national guided media. The instructions pertaining to the prisoners and the explanation of the content of the decisions taken by the command don't reach these renegades and at the same time there is a counter media from the Iranian regime.

- 4- Recruitment of the renegades and agents members of the Corps under several designations to carry out the work missions of the Iranian intelligence inside Iraq and among its targets are the locations of the Iranian organization of Mujahidi Khalq in Iraq, the collection of information about the military sectors, the technological advancement in the field of armament and the targeting of officials.
- 5- Members of the Corps were pushed to the inside and were entrusted with subversive operations to give them a role and to use them as a card in every operation of rapprochement between Iraq and Iran so they would be the peers of the Iranian organization of Mujahidi Khalq.
- 6- After the creation of what is called the United Iraqi National Conference and with the blessing of the United States and the support of the region countries and Iran, the latter emphasized the role of the Corps, claimed that it was the unique military force in the ranks of what is called the opposition and made it present in the vicinity of the Southern and Northern sectors.
- 7- The Corps cannot be considered a capable military force because as admitted by the group in charge of its supervision, it is incapable of resisting the Iraqi army, when we come to compare their armament and training. But this weak Corps could be a source of threats to the security of Iraq should the imperialist forces use it. These forces are represented by the US, especially that the criminal Al-Hakeem has meetings with the rulers of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait regarding the improvement of the Corps and the support of its role by resorting to the international conspiracy against Iraq.

Remedies:

Through organized and accurate intelligence work on the disloyal Badr Corp done last year in accordance with a plan, we obtained categorized information in addition to the withdrawal of a number of renegades and the disruption and neutralization of the agents' plans. It was an excellent and precise work done pursuant to the following directions:

- 1- To work on modernizing the database of the Corps' formations, its command and influential elements, locations, alternative locations, amendments and changes entered on it.
- 2- To try to know the conspiratorial plans the Corps has against Iraq, the Corps' extensions in Iran and inside Iraq, its subversive intentions and the covers its elements use inside the country or its infiltration in depth in Iran.
- 3- To try to elect qualitative command members having an effect on the Corps' decision making and to move in their direction to recruit them or neutralize them or burn them when they don't agree on that.
- 4- To create an influential in depth group to be used as front probes and early warnings. Its effectiveness was proved in notifying us about some of the Corps' plans and their orientation and led to the elimination of some of the subversive performances directed against Iraq. /Handwriting reads: To target some of its codes./
- 5- To push the Corps in a direction to disrupt its movements and activities through

- skillful misguidance and concealment done with accuracy to insure the performance of fictitious and fallacious operations.
- 6- To work on checking and verifying the renegade prisoners coming back to Iraq. To take advantage of the information they possess and to use them in the opposite direction by sending these prisoners back.
  - 7- To work on penetrating the Corps' computers and medical treatment division to use the information obtained for the benefit of our intelligence work.
  - 8- To maintain our penetration of the Corps by recruiting qualitative sources selected from its influential commanders to insure that the decision making sources are reached in a time record. To widen this process so it allows the control of the Corps' locations.
  - 9- To identify the officers working for Iran in general and for the Corps specifically. To limit their transfer unless there is an approval from the competent office. To differentiate them from their peers by rewarding them for their additional work efforts and to fill the vacant positions in order to monitor the activity of this faction.
  - 10- To continue working on the commands inside the Corps. To limit the scope of their connection inside Iraq and to take action with them in accordance with three lines. The first line is to be approached so it would work with us. To let the second line work in the Corps and leave Iran. To target the third line.
  - 11- To work on the axes existing in the Corps and hostile to Al-Hakeem by spreading division among them to increase their splitting. To support

- the viewpoints hostile to Al-Hakeem and to work on dismantling the Corps by guiding our sources in this direction.
- 12- To study /Added by hand: the expansion of the role of the national media by conveying the instructions of the command and the decisions issued/ on how to transfer the information to the Corps' elements by video or audio media or by resorting to friendly media reaching Iran. To create a steady program on the Iraqi satellite to be broadcasted weekly in which there are interviews with the families which took advantage of the pardon decision, provided that the interviews be conducted in their work places or homes.
- 13- /Handwriting in the margin reads: B/ To charge our stations abroad to study the possibility of conveying inside the Corps the decisions pertaining to the prisoners.
- 14- /Handwriting in the margin reads: C/ To allow the wives of the renegade prisoners to travel legally to Iran to explain to us the condition of their husbands after their return to Iraq, on the condition of meeting with this category and recruiting it.
- 15- To issue a pardon decision for the fugitives and to oblige the tribal sheikhs to move against their fugitive relatives, especially in the border regions.
- 16- To create a guided radio in the sector of the border line where the Corps' camps are present to disclose the bluffing methods used by the Corps' command, in addition to using the special cases we receive about the Corps from our sources in order to weaken the persons involved in them and gradually degrade them.

- 17- To /Handwriting reads: continuously/ take action with respect to the relatives of those working in the Corps and to be in touch with them by phone or directly in order to recruit them or neutralize them or keep them away from any act against Iraq. In case they approve to work with us, we keep them inside the Corps to watch the intentions the agents have and their moves against Iraq.
- 18- To target the locations of departure of the agents on the borders which are equivalent to a point of entrance and exit for them.
